

Gas Main Break Leaves 30,000 Without Heat In Midst of Cold Wave

OSWEGO, N. Y. (UP)—Service was expected to be restored today in nearly 15,000 homes and buildings in north central New York where a gas main break shut off furnaces, hot water heaters and kitchen stoves and left more than 30,000 persons without heat in the midst of this region's worst cold wave in history.

Eight of ten communities affected by the break reported service back to normal late Tuesday night and utility officials said gas was expected to be flowing through the mains again today in Oswego and in Fulton.

Refuge With Friends

At least 18,000 persons in Oswego, on the southern shore of Lake Ontario, were evacuated Tuesday to permit utility workers to enter their homes and turn off gas heaters. Most sought refuge with relatives and friends, but at least 1,300 spent the night in emergency quarters set up in churches, schools, an armory and in the Oswego City Hall.

At Fulton, a town of 14,000 population, 11 miles south of Oswego, about 100 families were housed in the Fulton Polish Home and in schools and churches. Others of the 10,500 deprived of gas service found refuge with friends and relatives.

Before seeking refuge for the night, thousands of residents in the stricken area tried to keep warm by staying close to fire places, hot plates and electric broilers. Some families rode around in autos equipped with heaters.

Numerous cases of frostbite were reported and at least six deaths in the area were attributed to the cold wave which plunged temperatures to as low as 55 degrees below zero.

Several Persons Burned

Several persons were burned while hovering over electric stoves and hot plates trying to keep warm. At Fulton, Mrs. Anna Soper, 55, was critically burned when her bathrobe caught fire as she huddled over a hot plate. She put out the fire by rolling in the snow outside her home.

Paducah Man Admits Carrier Mills Burglary

Scheduled to Be Taken to Prison From Pulaski County

Everett N. Sneed, chief deputy sheriff, today revealed that Charles Chambers of Paducah, scheduled to be sent to prison today, had admitted taking part in the safe burglary of the Carrier Mills Oil Co. the night of Dec. 15.

Chambers was scheduled to be taken to Menard penitentiary today to serve a four-year term for burglary given him in Pulaski county.

Sneed said Chambers had admitted he was the "safe man" in the Carrier Mills operation, in which the concrete-embedded safe was torn open and an unannounced amount of cash taken. The office of the oil company also was ransacked.

The oil company is operated by Mearl Guard, John Cummins and John Dameron.

Deputy Sheriff Tom Chester at Vienna said that Chambers also admitted the safe burglary at the Veach Oil Co. the same weekend, in which the safe was removed from the building and carried away.

Chester said the safe was un-locked and that no money was kept in it. It was dumped in Mass. county just off Route 145 four miles south of Dixon Springs.

He added that Chambers also had admitted the burglary of a farm implement firm at Grand Chain.

Chambers admitted he had accomplices but refused to state who they were, Chester declared.

Toscanini Dies; Symphony, Opera Conductor

NEW YORK (UP)—Maestro Arturo Toscanini, world renowned symphony and opera conductor, died early today at the age of 89. He suffered a stroke while asleep.

The beloved Italian-born musical genius died at his Riverside home in the Bronx. His health had declined steadily since his retirement from the podium in 1954 and he was reported nearly blind.

Toscanini suffered a stroke on New Year's Day, but had recovered enough to get about his house. Friends said he had been so ill that he was not told of the death of his protegee, young Italian conductor Guido Cantelli, in an air crash in Europe shortly before Thanksgiving.

Toscanini conducted his last opera, "Falstaff," at La Scala of Milan in 1954, ending a 68-year career that began when he conducted "Aida" at the age of 19 in Rio de Janeiro. He last wielded his baton in New York at a broadcast concert of the NBC Symphony Orchestra April 4, 1954.

Toscanini, whose wife died in 1951, was particularly devoted to his family and had enjoyed a reunion with them at his home here during the Christmas holidays. He is survived by a son, Walter, and two daughters, Mrs. Vladimir Horowitz, wife of the violinist, and Countess Wally Castelbarco.

He is survived by the widow, the former Miss Lola Johnson of Harrisburg.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 2 p. m. at the First Presbyterian church in Murphysboro and burial will be in the city cemetery.

Jury Finds Mrs. Corrie's Death Result of Fall

A coroner's jury last night returned a verdict that Mrs. Corrie, 72-year-old Dorris Heights resident, died of injuries received in a fall.

The verdict, returned at the court house following the inquest conducted by Coroner James Thornton, was that Mrs. Corrie died by falling and striking the left side of her face against a stove, the fall probably due to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Corrie, who had lived alone since the death of her husband last Nov. 22, died early Monday in Lightner hospital after being found in her home Sunday evening.

Coroner Thornton said evidence produced indicated she probably had lain on the floor at her home about 24 hours. She was fully clothed when found.

Testifying were Dr. G. R. Johnson, who said the blow she received could have been responsible for her death; Frank Gray, who found her; and Bert Gaskins of Gaskins funeral home.

The Department of Evangelism of the Southern Baptist Convention will be represented by Dr. Eual Lawson of Dallas, Texas. Dr. Noel M. Taylor, executive secretary of the Illinois Baptist State association, who laid the foundation for a special emphasis in evangelism in Illinois, will speak on Tuesday morning, Jan. 22, on "New Churches and Evangelism."

This Month is 20th Anniversary Of Great Flood

THE 1937 FLOOD: Normal rainfall in the Harrisburg area for January was 2.30 inches but the rains started falling and kept falling.

In fact, so much rain came down that the total was 6.6 inches for the first 14 days of January, 1937.

Rainfall was not confined to Harrisburg, to southern Illinois, but generally to the watershed of the Ohio river and its tributaries.

The great flood of 1937 was on its way. And although it doesn't seem that long ago, this month is its twentieth anniversary.

If you weren't around to see the flood, you've probably heard about it. Around here one thinks chiefly of the water in parts of Harrisburg

Storm Dumps Heavy Snows in Northeast Areas

By United Press

A snowstorm and icy winds whipped the frozen northeast today, and a new surge of Arctic air shoved into the north central states.

The worst snowstorm of the winter dumped from three to eight inches of snow on the mid-Atlantic states, and forecasters said the storm probably would unload more than a foot of snow on parts of New England before it abates.

The cold wave sent the mercury tumbling to 41 degrees below zero at West Yellowstone, Mont., and pushed all the way across the nation to the Gulf of Mexico.

A United Press survey showed that the death-dealing wave of wintry weather was responsible for at

President Rules Out Any Tax Cut For This Year

Humphrey Warns Spending Must Be Cut in the Future

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today proposed a $71.8 billion spending budget—the biggest ever in peacetime America.

He said three-fifths of this huge amount is necessary to provide U. S. and Allied strength "to deter and, if need be, to defeat aggression" in this still uncertain world.

He ruled out any general tax cut this year despite a small projected surplus. He asked for higher postal rates.

The President's secretary of treasury, George M. Humphrey, emphatically called for reduced spending and tax cuts in future budgets.

If this isn't done, "we'll have a depression that will surl your hair," said Humphrey without committing himself to any definite time element. He held out cautious hope that tax cuts could be started next year.

Humphrey made it plain to reporters that the record spending proposed in the new budget for fiscal 1958 was distasteful to him, although he went along with it.

The official budget itself was presented to Congress with a message from the President, which was read by clerks.

The Eisenhower budget was studded with records for spending exceeding those of peacetime Roosevelt and Truman years—for U. S. armed forces ($38 billion), for farm programs, for atomic and others.

His new budget for fiscal 1958 was in the black for the third straight year. The surplus of revenues over spending was estimated at $1.8 billion for the new year starting next July 1.

But to help check inflation, Mr. Eisenhower said, the surplus must be used further to reduce the federal debt which now stands at $275.7 billion.

"The prospective budget surplus in the fiscal year 1958 will reinforce the restraining effect of present credit and monetary policies."

Prison Group to Visit Pope-Hardin Site Tomorrow

The Pope-Hardin County Prison Site committee, headed by Otis Lamar of Rosiclare, today announced the Federal Site Field committee will visit the Pope-Hardin County area of southern Illinois tomorrow morning to inspect a site on the Ohio river bluff in the Shettleville area of Pope-Hardin counties between Rosiclare and Golconda.

The Pope-Hardin committee assembled a detailed brochure of the area and filed it with James V. Bennett, United States Prison director.

The brochure shows that approximately 2,500 acres of Ohio river bluff property is available and that both Pope and Hardin counties are labor surplus areas, as denominated by the United States Department of Labor.

Specific proposals were submitted as to power, water, sewage, fuel, transportation and community facilities.

Good Mileage

On Jan. 17, 1955, a sleek submarine slid through the waters of the Thames River in Connecticut, out into Long Island Sound and thence to the Atlantic. Incredible as it may seem, the fuel load it then carried has kept the ship operating steadily for two years.

The vessel is, of course, the Nautilus, America's first atom-powered submarine. In its two-year tour of duty it has sailed more than 50, 000 miles without refueling and could continue longer on the same atomic charge, though with lessened efficiency.

Perhaps the most astounding fact is that the Nautilus has sailed most of its logged mileage under water.
Early in its tour, it traveled 1,300 miles from the Connecticut coast to Puerto Rico without ever surfacing. So far as is revealed, no U. S. submarine has traveled a greater distance while submerged.

The refueling of a naval vessel ordinarily is a matter of interest only for the ship's log. But in the Nautilus' case, it is a milestone marking achievement of the highest order.

All Dressed Up and Ready to Go

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
He Won't Accept Nehru's Invitation To Visit India; Hungarian Refugees Could Create New Appreciation Of Our Freedoms; Congressmen Rebel At Carl Vinson's Dictatorship.

WASHINGTON. — President
Eisenhower has decided not to accept Prime Minister Nehru's invitation to make a return visit to India. Ike told his staff that he might offend other Asian countries if he visited India alone, and he had neither the time nor energy to tour southeast Asia.

Meanwhile, Nehru's honeymoon with the United States is already over—less than two weeks after Ike thought he charmed him into being a friend. Nehru is sizzling mad because Eisenhower did not tell him a single word during their White House conference about the new American Near East policy announced shortly after he left.

The American embassy has tried to explain that the new policy wasn't drafted until after Nehru left, but Nehru won't accept the explanation. He has seen press reports published before he arrived in Washington that Dulles concocted the idea while he was reoperating in Key West several weeks ago.

WATCHING HUNGARY

Pennsylvania Congressman Carroll Kearns, Republican, had some breath-taking experiences with Hungarian refugees on the Hungarian border recently.

He surprised everyone by appearing with his wife on the Austrian side of the Hungarian border at 4 o'clock in the morning to inspect a refugee camp.

"When they heard I was an American congressman, I was literally flooded with people," he recalls. "They all had stars in their eyes."

Kearns found that 60 per cent of the escapees wanted to come to the U. S. Yet there was no American official on the scene to greet them and keep hopes up, though other countries had responded by rushing consular personnel from Vienna to border camps. Reason was insufficient staff at the U. S. embassy.

Switzerland called off all dances out of respect for the Hungarian freedom fighters, according to Kearns. Some countries, including France, rushed buses to the Hungarian border, then announced: "All refugees who want to go to France, climb aboard."

By contrast, the 60 per cent who hoped to enter the U. S. had to sit around for days without any encouragement from an American official. Some made their way to Vienna to knock on the door of the American embassy in desperation, then were told to wait.

Kearns believes the refugees will be a ferment for good in the U. S. He tells of seeing an international Red Cross convoy of 35 trucks returning to Vienna following a mercy mission to Budapest.
"No one tried to pass them on the highway," he reports. "There was more reverence shown to those trucks than to a funeral procession in the United States."

The arrival of Hungarian refugees in the U. S., says the congressman, could create a new reverence and appreciation of our own American freedoms.

Committee, has warned the White House that the Atomic Energy Commission's relations with Congress are at an alltime low. He's suggested that Ike fill the next vacancy with an ex-member of Congress.

Social and Personal Items

MARRIED 68 YEARS—Mr. and Mrs. Mike McDermott of 213 Woolcott street in Gaskins City observed their 68 years of marriage Dec. 23, but due to illness and death in the family they were unable to hold a celebration. However, friends and relatives are invited to call Sunday, Jan. 20, at their home from 1 to 4 p. m. They were married in 1888 by Rev. J. K. Trovillion in Saline county at the home of the bride, the former Mittie Sisk. Witnesses were William Pierson and W. H. Moore, who reared Mrs. McDermott. They have five children: Hettie Clark, 1115 East Sloan, Fred, National street, Louie in Wayne, Mich., Webb of Detroit, Mich., and Blanch Clark of Enkster, Mich.; 20 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. They are both members of the Saline Ridge Missionary Baptist church and have been quite active in church work. Mr. McDermott is a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge in Dorrisville and for many years was a Justice of the Peace at Mitchellville.

Michael Hillegas Chapter Meets With Mrs. C. E. Combe

The Michael Hillegas chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution held its January meeting at the home of Mrs. C. E. Combe.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the recording secretary, Mrs. Tom Wolf, and Mrs. Victor Humm gave a report on the good citizenship awards. She reported all material had been mailed and three schools have been added to this year's awards: Ridgway, Shawneetown and Cave-in-Rock.

Mrs. Combe gave a report on national defense.

Mrs. Ralph Brown gave a devotion, "Crossing the Bar," in honor of Mrs. Carl Corrie, a former member of the D.A.R.

Mrs. Harley Shepherd, and Mrs. J. V. Capel were elected delegates to the Continental Congress in Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Humm was elected an alternate.

Mrs. Pat Sullivan, program chairman, introduced her father, Ray Durham, who gave a most interesting and informative talk on "American Documents," the first American document being the "Jamestown Charter." The greatest document is the Constitution, the most tragic, "Haskell's Account of the Battle of Gettysburg," and the greatest example of American prose the "Gettysburg Address." Mr. Durham brought out the fact that at first in the "blue laws" there were twelve offenses punishable by death. Now there are only two, "murder and treason."

The chapter was reminded that February is American History month.

Mrs. Ray Durham was a guest at the meeting.

Refreshments of apple pudding, coffee and mints were served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. Combe and her assistant hostesses, Mrs. J. A. Musgrave, Mrs. Harley Shepherd and Mrs. Chas. Burnett.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Gibbs, 501 South Texas street, are preparing to leave Saturday for Tucson, Ariz., for the benefit of the health of their little girl, who has had rheumatic fever. He has operated a Mobilgas station on U. S. 45 for a few years and the family is quite well known.

BLUE OR PINK?—This handsome crib was especially made for the expected child of Princess Grace and Prince Rainier III of Monaco. Three hundred hours were devoted by craftsmen to the rattan wickerwork, which is lined with quilted satin.

'Skelton Returns To Live Show; Expresses Thanks

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Red Skelton mugged his funniest on his television show Tuesday night, but the audience never saw the real drama that took place backstage.

After Red walked off the set, the producer, Cecil Barker, went into the comedian's dressing room and hugged him emotionally.

The comic, obviously tired and under a strain, returned to his live show for the first time since learning his 9-year-old son, Richard, is expected to die sometime this year from leukemia.

Only once did Red let the TV audience know of his heartbreak. At the end of the half hour program he thanked the 25,000 persons "in behalf of my wife, little Richard and myself" who have written or wired Red.

Red's wife, Georgia, was backstage as usual, laughing and gay. Another hero of the evening was Skelton's guest star, Mickey Rooney. He clowning constantly for two days between rehearsals to keep Red roaring.

"Red has hold of himself now," said Rooney. "He's resolved to pack as much love into these next few months as he can for the boy."

Rooney watched Skelton going through a routine on the stage while the audience howled. Mickey said, "The show unfortunately must go on. What else are you gonna do? Red is a champion."

A DOCTOR for BLUE JAY COVE

By ELIZABETH SEIFERT

Copyright 1956 by Elizabeth Seifert.

Distributed by NEA Service.

THE STORY: Dr. Alex Ward is having difficulties due to interference in his work at the Knapp hospital. Now he has just told Miss Lenoire Black that she is not as sick as she thinks. Miss Black is a woman of mystery at the hospital.

XIII

At four, when he was checking out at the first floor desk, he was surprised to see Lenoire Black come out of Francy's rooms, and go out through the side door. Francy had accompanied her, and turning back, she caught the surprise in Alex's face.

"She's a lovely person!" she said enthusiastically, wheeling rapidly along the shining corridor.

"Handsome," Alex agreed, taking up another chart.

"She says you think that she's doing very well," said Francy. Evidently she had decided not to fire Alex over the Reudlinger matter; instead she was doing as Alex had predicted—ignoring the incident.

"She is," he said. "I told her today that she could—if she liked—discontinue the treatments and expect to progress voluntarily."

"But, Alex, why...?"

"I wondered why she bothered with the hospital. From the first, her paralysis has been slight, and she is obviously short of funds."

He smiled wryly at the explosive noises coming from the hospital drive. "That noisy old car—and the houseboat where she lives. She shouldn't be spending big money on treatments which she doesn't acutely need."

She tossed her head, and clenched her fingers upon the chair arms. "I do feel it would be better all around, Alex, if you would do your job as a doctor, and—"

"And?"

"Well, not forget who you are." Later, he decided he would have to leave House Springs. And there was no use fooling around about it.

He was preparing to empty the desk drawers when the door behind him opened, and Sue's cropped head appeared.

"Your blood pressure is up a little, isn't it, Sonny?" she asked keenly.

"Yes," snapped Alex. "I've had a day to send anybody's b-p sky high."

"Now you know Francy..."

"Three rows in a day is a bit over her average, Sue."

Sue knitted her brows. "I must have missed something."

"Look!" Alex hooked his knee across the desk corner. "What do you make of this Black woman?"

Sue's lower lip dropped.

"Lenoire Black!" said Alex gruffly. "The houseboat one. What is she doing here in the Cove? What's her line? Or, maybe what's her racket? Other than being whistle-bait?"

"She hasn't told us one thing about herself! Except for a case of amnesia I treated in New York, I've never handled a case with less history to go on."

"She just happens to be the nearest to a saint that I'll ever know! Oh, Alex, you've no idea!"

"No," he said gravely. "I haven't."

Now Sue sat on the desk corner. She talked rapidly and with emotion.

"She lives in actual poverty in that houseboat. She has a handful of dishes, an old stove. One chair, a cot-bed. But everything is as clean as a pin. She has become, in one month, perhaps the best-known woman in Blue Jay Cove."

"I'm still waiting," said Alex. "You called her a saint..."

"And she is. She has an uncanny way of knowing when people are sick, or in trouble—and she comes in at some especially difficult time to help them. There was a woman down on Broadway who burned her hand. For a week, Miss Black came in every morning to bathe her baby. No question, no comment, just quietly efficient and ready to help in a real way. Sometimes all she does is to bring in a cluster of bittersweet to a lonely old person. Then I've heard of her offering to stay for a week end with a family of small children to let the mother get away for a trip with her husband—and she did stay, too, with the children so content and well cared for that the mother declares they weren't glad to see her come home. That was the Branson family."

"She's helped me, Alex, and I've been grateful. That night when Bill had the ear ache—remember? Cleophas was away and you needed me over here to help with that acute appendix—do you remember? I was trying to figure out what to do when Lenoire Black appeared at my door, and asked if she could help. I didn't ask questions then, I won't ask them now."

By the time Alex came into the Haven, supper was being served, and his mother sat alone at her table in the bay window. "Cass," she told him, "wants to wait and eat with you."

"Where is she?"

"Over in her rooms. Alex—" "What's happened?" Aunt Cordy, he saw, was in a temper.

Aunt Cordy ate swiftly of the food on her plate, and talked to him in spurts of anger and emotion. She had, he was told, mothered an ungrateful child—perhaps two of them! She mentioned the sacrifices she had made—for those children, she implied—the fact that she had no life of her own—not even dreams—because everything she wanted, her children took delight in thwarting...

"I'll send over a tray," she offered, in a bruised tone, when finally she had let him guide her to her room.

Slaying of Indiana

U. Student Ruled

Justifiable Homicide

EFFINGHAM, Ill. (AP) — The slaying of a 21-year-old University of Indiana student during a burglary was ruled as justifiable homicide today by a coroner's jury here.

Robert Coster, Gary, Ind., was slain by a shotgun blast Sunday night fired by Fay Morr, mayor of Montrose and operator of a garage and service station.

Morr investigated on hearing breaking glass and fired at Coster in the garage. Coster was found dead later by authorities.

An autopsy showed that he was struck in the heart and lung by the shotgun blast.

Coster's companion and roommate, David Monroe, 21, also of Gary and a sophomore at the university, said Coster decided to steal a battery from the garage "for kicks." Authorities found $70

Monroe testified that they had driven to Illinois to "get a beer." Monroe has been charged with burglary.

Richard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cantrell, talked about atomic energy, its uses and dangers. He told of advances in the field of medicine by research in atomic energy.

To Play Recording Of Own Sermon at Minister's Funeral

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill. (AP) — A minister will preach the sermon at his own funeral here Thursday.

Seven years ago, Elder Charlie M. Weaver of the Primitive Baptist Church recorded his obituary and funeral sermon. He asked that the 12-inch disk be played at his funeral.

Weaver, 89, died after a heart attack today. Funeral Director Roland Murman said the record will be played at the services Thursday, as requested by Weaver and his widow, Alice.

The Rev. Homer Young, Nashville, Ill., who was a close friend of the elder, will officiate.

A radio congregation of millions this month joins Charles E. Fuller in commemorating the beginning of his 33rd year of continuous broadcasting.

Known, and highly respected, as one of the pioneers in the field of radio evangelism, Fuller's "Old Fashioned Revival Hour" has met with phenomenal success around the world as it brings spiritual enrichment to listeners everywhere.

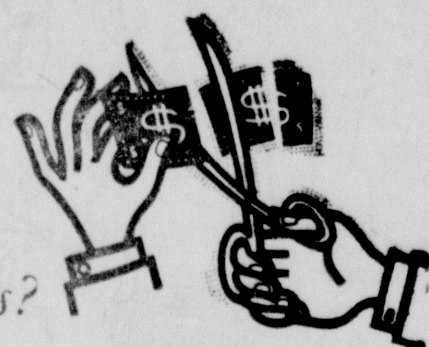

It is generally regarded by religious, civic, and educational leaders alike that Dr. Fuller's ability to present a clear and simple Gospel message, which can be easily understood by the average layman, is no doubt one of the main reasons for the continuing popularity of his radio ministry.

Realizing, more than three decades ago, that there were hundreds of thousands of un-churched people who needed to be reached with the message of hope through Christ, Dr. Fuller launched his radio ministry which has developed into a globe-encircling success story, amazing even the veteran radio analysts.

Not only has the broadcast helped the un-churched, but ministers of all denominations have credited the ministry of the "Old Fashioned Revival Hour" with giving spiritual strength and inspiration to their own congregations.

The broadcast originates in the Long Beach, California, Municipal Auditorium, and features, in addition to the message by Dr. Fuller, a program of outstanding music presented by a 30-voice choir, male quartet, and inspirational singing

Cousy Sparks East All-Stars To 109-97 Win

BOSTON — Bob Cousy provided the East All-Stars with the playmaking and spark for a 109-97 victory over the West in the National Basketball Association's annual All-Star Game, but his teammate, Bill Sharman, supplied the high point of the game with the longest field goal in Boston Garden history.

Cousy, the Boston Celtics' backcourt wizard, scored only 10 points, but his ball-handling and feeding set up hook-shooting Neil Johnston of the Philadelphia Warriors and others in a third period spree that gave the East its fifth victory in the seven games that have been played.

Cousy's performance won him the Most Valuable Player award for the second time in the past four All-Star games. However, Sharman's 70-foot field goal in the first period was the high spot for the crowd of 11,178.

In attempting a long, one-handed downcourt pass to Cousy, Sharman accidentally threw the ball through the hoop in as clean a basket as he will ever score.

Bob Pettit of St. Louis wound up as the game's high scorer with 21 points, two more than Johnston and Maurice Stokes of Rochester.

Dodgers Sell Ebbets Field Title

BROOKLYN — The Dodgers don't own a home in Brooklyn any more.

This came about officially Tuesday afternoon when the ball club formally sold title to Ebbets Field to Marvin Krater and his associates. Immediately, the Dodgers rented the park for the next three years.

Dodger officials said they hope by the time the lease expires they will be able to move into a new home in Flatbush, the much-discussed Brooklyn Sports Center.

Herrin Trips Panthers, 45-42

PINCKNEYVILLE, Ill. — Herrin made a strong bid for higher ranking in Illinois prep basketball circles today following its 45-42 win over Pinckneyville, the state's third-ranked quintet.

Herrin, the fourth-ranked team in the United Press high school basketball ratings, led all the way, despite Pinckneyville's home court advantage, in the feature cage contest Tuesday night.

Herrin's John Tidwell was the night's high scorer with 18 markers while John Daffron paced the losers with 15.

Both teams played the entire game without a substitution. Herrin boosted its record to 13-1, while Pinckneyville now has a 13-2 mark. Both teams were beaten earlier by Collinsville.

Herrin led at halftime, 27-21.

About Town
And Country

towns and cities, were inundated by the flood waters.

Some of these places, undoubtedly, would suffer untold damage if flood waters of the proportions of 1937 were to come again. But at least two places, Harrisburg and Shawneetown, did something about it.

Shawneetown—a large portion of it—moved to high, safe ground about three miles west of the Old Town. Harrisburg built a flood wall. The flood wall was completed except for a small stretch near Pankeyville, and engineers say that bulldozers could push up a wall only a few feet high that would take care of the gap. There would be time for such a project after waters started rising to dangerous levels.

Funny thing about Harrisburg—no, it wasn't funny, but unique—was that it was to be affected although more than 20 miles from the river.

The situation was bad here the middle of January when people were forced to leave lowlands around the city.

"Scenes reminiscent of the 1913 flood were re-enacted today," a story in The Daily Register of Jan. 15 declared. What was to come made the flood of 1913 a piker.

This story revealed that an estimated 100 families were forced to evacuate their homes in the north, west and east portions of town, which were flooded. Water was six inches deep in the engine room of the Harrisburg Ice Co., and had entered stores on North Main. Live stock in the low parts of the country around the town took refuge on high spots surrounded by water.

Then the flood, which was headwaters, dropped about three feet in the next 24 hours and there was a look of normalcy. The back waters from the Ohio were to come later.

Meanwhile, at Shawneetown, the Ohio stage on Jan. 19 had risen to 46.3 feet with one observer predicting a crest of 50 feet the next week.

But Shawneetown had a strong levee and 50 feet—or a little more—would not bring flood waters into the town. You could still drive into Shawneetown through Ridgeway. Or you could go south from Harrisburg and cut across to Route 1, then go north to Route 13 and east into the town.

But two days later, on Jan. 21, the stage was 50.2 feet with a 1.67-inch rain during the night. The WPA (Works Progress Administration) assigned 200 men to patrol the Shawneetown levee.

About 30 families in the Saline river valley south of Equality were evacuated.

"It's a freak river and there's no way to figure it," Shawneetown Mayor William Brinkley told The Daily Register. "The crest may be 52 or 53 feet."

The Shawneetown levee was 60 feet. That prediction meant the water would be rushing by seven or eight feet from the top.

But the next day—Jan. 22—communication was cut off and Shawneetown isolated, with a river stage of 59 feet estimated.

Eisenhower to Ask $76 Million Drought Relief

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—President Eisenhower announced plans to earmark $76 million for immediate aid to drought-stricken farmers and ranchers Tuesday night in completing a 4,500-mile tour that took him into six water-short states.

In addition to immediate assistance, the President listed a series of long-range plans designed to help overcome the worst drought disaster in this country in modern history.

The President's tour, which began Sunday night, visited six states in the southern Great Plains where he talked to numerous farmers and ranchers on their individual problems brought on by the seven-year drought.

Need Local Help

Mr. Eisenhower emphasized he thinks state and local governments should help farmers and ranchers more with their problems.

He told a special drought conference of representatives from 15 western, midwestern and southwestern states that he will ask Congress to:

1. Let him spend $25 million from the disaster loan revolving fund for emergency feed assistance to ranchers and farmers.

2. Extend, until June 30, 1958, $25 million of the unobligated funds appropriated for agricultural conservation, so Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson can pay farmers to carry out wind erosion prevention and other emergency conservation measures.

3. Appropriate an additional $26 million primarily for refinancing farm indebtedness by direct loans.

In his long-range view on the drought, the President called for extensive research, particularly in underground water. This is a project that will take a long time and should be thorough, he said.

Four Killed in Crash of B47

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP)—Air Force investigators today picked through B47 Stratofort bomber wreckage scattered over a potato field to determine what caused a spectacular crash which took the lives of four fliers.

The Air Force also sought to determine whether the big, silver Stratofort, equipped to carry atomic or hydrogen bombs, exploded before or after it plowed into the field Tuesday.

Bank Bandit

Flees with $46,000

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Police today sought a "sharp talking" bandit who entered a branch bank on a pretext of setting up a trust fund and fled with $46,000 in small bills.

The robber brandished a snub-nosed revolver in the holdup Tuesday and forced two employees of the Lincolnway Branch of the National Bank and Trust Co. to stand against a wall while he looted the vault.

Budget At A Glance

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's fiscal 1958 budget at a glance:

Tax Cut: None for the average citizen; possibly some modest relief for small business. Higher postal rates asked.

Spending: Highest in peacetime history, $71.8 billion. That's up $2.9 billion from this year; higher defense costs account for most of rise.

Revenues: Mr. Eisenhower assumes business will stay good, estimates the government will take in $73.6 billion next fiscal year compared with $70.6 this year.

Surplus: Will amount to about $1.8 billion if all goes as budgeted, but "uncertainties abound." The figure was $1.7 billion this year.

Big Items: Defense, $38 billion; foreign aid, $4.4 billion; atomic energy, $2.3 billion; interest on debt, $7.4 billion; agriculture $5 billion; veterans benefits, $5 billion.

icies," he said in a new warning of inflation dangers.

Mr. Eisenhower asked an increase of $654 million in postal rates. His budget message did not give any details, but they were sure to include 1 or 2 cents more for a first class letter.

Congress turned down such a request last year. His chances were considered better for getting it this year.

Increase Farm Budget

Of the total spending, about six-tenths—$45.3 billion—would be for national security, including military and economic aid to U. S. Allies. U. S. armed forces would get $38 billion. These programs, he said, will "provide a wise and reasonable degree of protection for the nation."

In addition to the big defense budget, Mr. Eisenhower called for the highest spending ever on atomic energy and farm programs. Atomic energy funds were hiked by $400 million to $2.3 billion for military and peaceful purposes. Agriculture spending was increased by $300 million to $5 billion.

Sizeable increases also were asked for veterans benefits, improved air safety and development of natural resources.

Mr. Eisenhower telescoped his five-year $1.2 billion school construction program into a four-year plan. It died in Congress last year because of the segregation issue. He estimated spending next year on school construction at $185 million if Congress now agrees to start the program.

All these things, and more, pushed the total spending estimate up $2.8 billion over the current fiscal year, fiscal 1957.

About seven-tenths of the increase went to the military. It resulted largely from the high cost of "new and more powerful weapons," such as guided missiles with atomic warheads. The missiles budget rose from $1.5 to $2 billion.

Mr. Eisenhower said U. S. military forces also must be equipped with conventional weapons during the period of switching to the new ones.

Expand Nuclear Arsenal

The military funds were divided: $17.5 billion for the Air Force, $10.3 billion for the Navy and $9.1 billion for the Army—all to maintain them as a "bulwark for world peace and security."

The President made clear that the development of atomic and hydrogen weapons will be pushed until an ironclad disarmament agreement is reached with Russia.

The whole 1958 budget stacked up against 1957's like this (in billions):

	1958	1957
Receipts	$73.6	$70.6
Expenditures	$71.8	$68.9
Surplus	$1.8	$1.7

While proposing record spending, Mr. Eisenhower emphasized the importance of government, business and labor doing their utmost to curb inflation.

Some Tax Relief

While taxes "must be retained at the present rates," he said, Congress should consider some tax relief for small business "with a minimum loss" of federal revenue.

Decreases in tobacco, liquor, auto and corporation taxes scheduled for April 1, he said, must be postponed for another year.

Mr. Eisenhower's budget message included a number of legislative recommendations.

It proposed that the interest rate on veterans' home loans be increased from 4½ to 5 per cent in an effort to induce investors to make more money available for such loans.

It asked Congress to approve a natural gas bill similar to the one Mr. Eisenhower vetoed last year because of what he called "arrogant" lobbying for it. The bill would ease federal regulation of gas producers.

The president also recommended statehood for Alaska and Hawaii, additional federal judges, a new corn acreage program, authority to barter of farm surpluses to Iron Curtain countries, easier

Powell Sponsors Bill to Provide Funds for School Lunch Program

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The Legislature started a two-week recess today after receiving a four million dollar appropriation measure designed to bring parochial and private schools back under the state school lunch program and a flood of other bills.

Both the Senate and House adjourned Tuesday until Jan. 28.

Rep. Paul Powell (D-Vienna) sponsored the bill to provide two million dollars a year for the next two years for state contributions to the school lunch program. An approximately equal amount would be provided from federal funds.

The bill in effect would again bring parochial and private schools under the lunch program since it sets up a separate appropriation for school lunch funds for all schools. Parochial and private schools withdrew from the lunch aid program this biennium after the lunch money for the first time was included in the overall school aid appropriation bill.

Withdraw From Program

They withdrew in order to avoid resentment and possible legal attack by being included in the general appropriation measure or by having a separate appropriation made for them alone.

Powell also introduced a bill to insure that state school aid for bus transportation would include private and parochial pupils.

The Senate advanced to passage stage bills to provide a $369,259 emergency appropriation to the Orville E. Hodge-looted state auditor's office and to allow transfer of another $290,000 from various accounts to other accounts to make up other shortages in the auditor's office.

Schedule Jan. 29 Hearing

The House scheduled a committee of the whole hearing for Jan. 29 on a $30,150,000 deficiency appropriation for the Public Aid Commission.

Another bill introduced by Powell in the House would require registration of lobbyists, filing of reports by lobbying groups on their expenses and provide fines from $200 to $5,000 for violators.

The bill went further than a similar Senate bill in that it would prohibit lobbyists to be paid on a "contingent fee" basis, that is depending on the success of their lobbying efforts.

Another bill apparently aimed at preventing Hodge-type frauds would replace the present state purchasing agent with a bipartisan state purchasing commission which would appoint a purchasing agent and require competitive bidding on purchases of $1,000 or more.

Bill Asks Death Penalty

Other bills introduced would: Provide a death penalty for forcible rape.

Provide prison sentences for narcotics violations instead of jail or penal farm sentences. A similar Senate bill is aimed at reducing overcrowding at Vandalia State Prison Farm.

Eliminate the requirements for splash guards on small trucks, dump trucks and farm trucks. A second measure would repeal the controversial "contour type" splash guard requirements passed in 1955.

Void Public Aid Commission liens on the homesteads of persons receiving relief payments.

Revise salaries and per diem compensation for township assessors.

Permit counties to construct and maintain nursing homes as well as county hospitals.

Fire Destroys Methodist Church in East

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Authorities today checked the possibility an arsonist touched off a general alarm fire Tuesday night that destroyed a 50-year-old Methodist church, damaged another church and ruined three office buildings in the heart of this central New York metropolis.

Three firemen were injured when a church wall collapsed during the blaze which raged out of control for four hours. Five others were treated for frostbite incurred while fighting the fire in sub-zero weather.

Fire Chief Francis R. Ferren, who ordered an immediate investigation, said he was "skeptical of all church fires in this part of the country."

"There have been too many of these church fires for us to brush off as being accidental," he said.

Damage was estimated at $500,000, but authorities said this figure probably would be revised upward after further investigation.

Destroyed were the First Methodist Church, an adjoining two-story office building housing the Mutual Federation of New York Underwriters and the Onondaga County Public Works Commission; the three-story Wesleyan Publishing Association Building and a structure housing the offices of the Methodist Church and Bishop Earl W. Ledden.

Flames also damaged the rear of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, which served as an underground "railway station" for slaves en route to Canada after escaping from the South during the Civil War.

Receives Letter from Former Acquaintance Through Register Story

Mrs. Anna Grace Cummins, thru a Daily Register item, has received a letter from a woman she hadn't heard from in 30 years.

Several days ago a Daily Register story revealed Mrs. Cummins had returned a purse left in Schmierle's to its owner, a woman who was travelling through Harrisburg.

Mrs. Fred Lasseter, who formerly lived near Harrisburg, read the item in the Daily Register at Laramie, Wyoming, where she now resides.

She did not know Mrs. Cummins' married name but took a chance on it being the person she had known years ago, and it turned out to be the same person.
